Decking Halls Has History

"Christ was born on Christmas day,
Wreathe the holly, twine the bay."

From England of long ago come the words of this carol, showing the early role of the bay tree and its greens in decorating for Christmas.

Its use harks back to ancient Greece, when both the bay and the laurel bedecked homes and public places in symbol of triumph. As traditional Christmas greens, they reflect the same joyful spirit, say the editors of the Grolier Universal Encyclopedia.

Holly, of course, is still popular as Yuletide greenery. But nowadays, when it's time to deck the halls, bay leaves are more likely to spice holiday cookery, rather than holiday decorating.

Merry Christmas

May the gaiety and glee of this holiday season brighten the hearts and homes of our friends. Thanks for your loyalty.

...follows function" ...be the rule in bike buying, most particularly when buying for children, where safety is the prime consideration. Parents must exercise considerable judgement in buying the "right bike" for their offspring. The most common mistake made here is that many parents will buy a bike that is too large for their child so that he can "grow into it," and get a few more years out of it. This is a dangerous economy, and can lead to accidents and injury. Buy bikes to fit, not to grow into. Here's a good way to make sure.

Have your child stand astride a boy's bike. If he can stand with both feet flat on the ground and still clear the cross bar with an inch or so to spare, the bike is not too big. Then the saddle and handlebars can be adjusted up or down for comfortable riding position. Test girls the same way...on a boy's bike; find the one that fits, and buy a comparably sized girl's model.

The best advice is to go to your local bike store and talk to the owner. Tell him what you think you want in the way of a bike, let him know how much you want to spend and how you intend to use it. His advice will probably be excellent. Once he has picked out a bike or two that he thinks will suit your needs, test it by riding it around the block a few times. Have him adjust the saddle and handlebars to your height. A poorly fitting or badly adjusted bike is no bargain at any price.

In order to assure that the bikes they make—in whatever style—truly meet the needs of today's bike-buying public, the members of the Bicycle Manufacturers Association of America have developed a standard for safety and manufacturing known as BMA/6. These manufacturers are now making all models of their full lines of regular bikes—regardless of style—to the specifications of this stringent standard.

In adopting BMA/6, the industry strengthened and codified the already high standards and quality control procedures of individual manufacturers. The BMA/6 seal of certification on the seat mast, right under the saddle, assures the customer that the bicycle he buys conforms to the standard's rigid specifications for brakes, tires, strength and durability of fork, frame, steering assembly and general structural integrity. Production models of these bikes have been tested for compliance by the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute, a leading independent testing laboratory.
